The proposed change in regulations regarding broadcast ownership is contrary to the best interests of the American public. Ownership of radio stations and other media outlets is already concentrated in too few hands and any regulation which will lead to more concentration is a very bad regulation.